Rates Apply From 1st January 2014.

All advertising is accepted on a pre-paid basis only.

No advertising or insertions will be undertaken until payment has cleared the banking system.

Unlike most other magazines published in the UK, 'The Great War' is funded by its subscribers, and not by advertising revenue.

This ensures that our advertising rates are kept low, but also means that space is extremely limited.

The Great War is sold by subscription only and published bi-monthly in the first full week of September (start of our subscription year), November, January, March, May and July.

Our advert design service is free of charge.

The GREAT WAR

The little magazine dedicated to the Great War and to those who perished and those who returned

The Great War magazine (1914-1918) was launched to much acclaim in September 2001 in response to requests for a publication which was dedicated to the men and women of all nationalities who served in that conflict. Originally published quarterly, it went into bi-monthly production in September 2003.

The magazine has an open-door editorial policy and steers clear of lofty academic and dry scholarly work. The ethos of the magazine is simply to tell the stories of those who served, on all fronts; the aim, to record and remember those who might otherwise be forgotten or passed over.

The 76-page, A5 magazine features the personal stories, diaries, memoirs, letters and poetry of the men and women (of all nationalities) who served between 1914 and 1918, those who perished and those who survived, and their families. No subject or area of the war is excluded. One of the most popular features has been the 'Roll of Honour' page, on which subscribers record the names of those they wish to be remembered, whether they died in action, or at home after the war.

Alongside details of the contents of each issue, our website also features dozens of letters of praise and good wishes for the magazine. The magazine may be small, but it is a labour of love for those concerned and is our way of 'keeping faith' with those who can no longer speak for themselves. Together with our readers, we tell their stories. You will not find lengthy editorials or fancy, long-winded articles in the magazine.

This is the magazine that those with an interest in the Great War and their family history have been waiting for, one which tells the story from the aspect of those who served and the families who remember them.

Among the unique selling points of this publication are that it is only sold to subscribers, so our readership has a dedicated interest in the subject matter, and also that it is not sold 'retail', which means we do not have a 'sale or return' policy which requires unsold copies from each issue's print run to be pulped. In fact the majority of our subscribers also purchase binders and build their collections by purchasing back issues (thus providing longevity for advertisers).

GENERAL TERMS:

All advertising must be pre-paid. Please make cheques payable to 'M. Marsay'. We also accept payment by BACS or direct bank transfer.

Display Adverts are boxed with a 0.5mm rule. Although we accept camera-ready b/w artwork, we prefer to create basic display adverts in-house - FREE OF CHARGE. Typewritten copy is sufficient for us to create adverts in-house. Background tints, images, type reversal etc., can be added if requested (with or without box rule) for such adverts. If in doubt, please contact us to discuss your requirements at the time of booking as we may require you to supply material in a particular format on disc (PC not Mac), or as suitable artwork. We also accept adverts and illustrations in TIFF, JPEG and PDF file formats.

All adverts must conform to the guidelines and sizes given. Advertisers are advised to book early and as far in advance of chosen publication date as possible as available space is extremely limited. We advise all advertisers to contact us prior to making and paying for a booking in order to check available space.

Although all reasonable steps are taken to ensure accuracy, neither Great Northern Publishing nor 'The Great War' magazine accept liability for incorrect entries, errors, acts or omissions in adverts placed in the magazine. Advert proofs will be sent to named contacts on request prior to publication.

The magazine does not accept advertising for 'illegal' products or material, or from advertisers who do not supply a full postal address and telephone (land line - not mobile) contact number - these do not have to appear in the advert. A fully detailed invoice will be issued on acceptance.
